EXHIBITOR INSIGHTS: GETTING READY FOR FACETS 2025

With only four months left till F25, our 90+ exhibitors have been keeping busy preparing for the show. Describing Facets as the “trend setter” for the rest of the year, our exhibitors work year-long, spending long hours at the cutting machine or drawing board, to curate their versatile and stunning displays. Visitors can expect glamorous arrays of coloured sapphires - ranging from classic blues to vibrant pinks, cool teals, rare whites and bright yellows - alongside elegant diamonds and other coloured gemstones.

This year, the exhibitors have highlighted a specific focus on innovation and creativity. Some have been focused on enhancing tried-and-true lapidary and cutting techniques in order to bring to light the unique flairs of each individual gemstone and allow the passion and care poured into each stone to shine through. Others, meanwhile, have been meticulously crafting original jewellery designs that incorporate a multitude of different textures, materials and colours with the aim of pushing the boundaries of conventional design while continuing to honour the long-standing traditions and craftsmanship of Sri Lankan jewellery.

“FACETS is a celebration of gemstones”, connecting every tier and facet of the gem and jewellery industry worldwide. As well as the various knowledge sharing and networking opportunities that the show provides, this year’s Gems of Influence Power Breakfast is an especially anticipated event. One exhibitor, for instance, shared that “as a company with a predominately female staff, this event is an excellent opportunity to explore strategies for empowering women” and many view the event as an opportunity to inspire progress, growth and inclusivity.

From such conversations, it is clear that our exhibitors are eagerly anticipating the show, along with all the opportunities and learning it will bring, and it is guaranteed that FACETS will have an unparalleled display of Sri Lankan sapphires and coloured gemstones in store for its visitors.

SUSTAINABILITY SPOTLIGHT

With conversations on sustainability becoming increasingly prevalent amongst today's consumers and suppliers, our exhibitors have been committed to adapting their practices to the industry's growing awareness of both environmental and social issues. Several of our exhibitors have taken substantial steps to contribute to and partner with initiatives and societies that aid conservation efforts in Sri Lanka, such as the Wildlife and Nature Protection Society which works to protect our elephants and leopards, and the Facets Tree Planting Program - hoping to create further engagement with such issues within the industry. By, for instance, choosing to source rough stones from local mining communities, many have also begun to prioritise community engagement, transparency, regulatory compliance, fair trade and ethical sourcing
